Was the suicide premeditated? The Motive. Surrounded with wealth, holding the highest position socially, and with hosts of friends, the motive for the suicide could not be an ordinary one. The explanation suggested by the family is that he was suffer ing from temporary aberration of mind. A friend says that Tom Cobb had been rushed from court to court by the pressure of railroad litigation growing out of the Richmond and Danville's receivership. This the friend considers as the strain which unsettled his mind. "Cobb was of en un-usually sensitive and nervous temperament. The troubles of his friends in the Gate City bank failure, of which corpora tion he was associate counsel with his father, preyed upon his mind. He was terribly shocked by the misfortune of the bank, and this increased the strain and werry. He has been more depressed the last few days than I ever saw him before. No one except an intimate friend would observe it, perhaps, but I did. I had noticed that he was greatly worried for some time past, but thought that it would pass of. His family has ample means to have met any obligation that he might have had. He was not a ruined man, financially, a condition which makes many a man desperate. The mental strain was the sole cause of his rash act. We all know his groud spirit.

He had a fine intellect and would have made a splendid success at the bar."

THE HATCH BILL CHECKED AGAIN.

spite Mr. Hatch's Efforts to Get It Up, The Bundry Civil Appropriation Bill Passes the Senate-Personal News.

Washington, February 23 .- (Special.)-The popularity of the new secretary of the navy was evidenced in the house this morning by a remarkable scene. Colonel Herbert came in a few minutes after the house met and modestly started for his seat. The first member who espied him clapped his hands. Immediately every head was turned and like a storm a great roar of applause

Mr. Outhwaite, who had the floor at the time, announced that he would give the gentleman from Alabama five minutes to reply to the recognition which the house had accorded him. Colonel Herbert simply said that the demonstration touched him more than he could express and thanked the house from the bottom of his heart. Everybody is delighted with the appointment. Mr. Cleve-land could have selected no man with whom the house would have been better satisfied, lthough there are those who think he should have selected one free coinage man in his cabinet. As it now stands, every man who goes into the cabinet is a goldbug The appointment of Mr. Olney for attorney general is decidedly satisfactory. He is said to be the ablest lawyer in New England. Here are some expressions about the Speaker Crisp-It is a very good cabinet, and a satisfactory one, I guess I am very glad that Mr. Herbert was taken for the navy portfolio.

Mr. Turner, of Georgia—It is a very good cabinet.

Mr. Bingham, of Pennsylvania—It is a strong cabinet. I am very much delighted with Mr. Herbert's appointment. cabinet has this peculiarity and this satisfaction. It is the first which has ever een announced before the 4th of March I liked that. It is a personal cabinet and is chosen for fidelity of its members and that is a point about it which is not al-ways apparent in a cabinet.

Representative Livingston, of Georgia— ir. Herbert's appointment is a nmber one appointment and will please my section of the country thoroughly. They are thoroughly satis-fied with Cleveland, but there is a division among them upon the appointment of Mr. Gresham. I want to say this, that the war in the department of agriculture. are peculiar and we have had no man in the office who was thoroughly conversant with the production of cotton, of sugar, of rice and tobacco. I do not know Mr. Morton, but I judge from the newspaper accounts of him that he is a practical as well as theoretical agriculturist, and will give satisfaction. This matter of Mr. Cleveland's political family, is one ought to be left entirely to him. He ought to be not only responsible, but the privilege ought to be extended to him without stint, to make up his political family just entative Crosby, of Massachusetts -I think that the appointments as a whole are the very best that could have been made. As soon as I had learned who would be in the cabinet, it occurred to me, that the proper men had been appointed, and that at never had made appointment of men who excelled in ability those who compose Mr. Cleveland's cabinet during his second administration.

With reference to the appointment of Mr. Olney as attorney general, it is, in my opinion, the best that could be made. I know him personally and have been brought in contact with him during my term of service when he was counsel for the Boston and Maine and other railroads. I regard him as in many respects the ablest lawyer in New England. His appointment will reflect great credit upon Mr. Cleveland and be entirely satisfactory to men of both Senator Pugh said: "My relations with Mr. Herbert have al-ways been of the most friendly and pleaswell equipped by long service in the house naval committee, for the efficient discharge of the duties of secretary of the navy. I am constrained to believe that the ruling motive for Herbert's appointment was the courage he displayed in being the only member from Alabama who voted against 95 per cent of his constituents on the free coinage of silver. Mr. Herbert is the only democrat of prominence in Alabama who agrees with the enemies of free coinage. There is not a man in Cleveland's cabinet from the south or west who represents his state or the democratic party on the silver question. If it is Cleveland's purpos making his cabinet a unit against 90 per into the service of the money kings, he is doomed to the most signal failure."

To these comments ex-Speaker Reed, of Maine, added this characteristic cap sheaf— I think that Cleveland changed his mind inet because of some speech Hill or some other democrat made about me. I am disappointed.

The selection of Mr. Herbert to be secretary of the navy in Cleveland's cabi-net is the cause of much satisfaction among the bureau chiefs and other officers of the service on duty at the navy department. Mr. Herbert's long service as chairman and as a member of the house committee on naval affairs, have given him a personal acquaintance with a great number ficers and the sentiment is universal among them that he is admirably equipped for his

The appointment of Richard Olney as attorney general was a great surprise here. The fake dispatch sent out from Brookville, Penn., was believed to be true at first. However, Mr. Olney is said to be one of the ablest lawyers in the country

The sundry civil appropriation bill has passed the senate and is now back into the house with the Sherman 3 per cent bond amendment. To this Mr. Bland and indeed, all the free coinage men in the house, are bitterly opposed, and an effort will be made to non-concur in the senate amendments and send the bill to conference, but the opponents to the Sherman amendment declare they will not agree to that. They will de-mand the consideration of the bill as amended in the house, and should it appear that a majority of the house favors the amendment, there are a hundred free coinage men who declare they will filibuster until the 4th of March before allowing it to pass.

Mr. Bland and his followers are determined. mined. The Missourian seems to believe that should that amendment pass Mr. that should that amendment pass Mr. Carlisle, when he becomes secretary of the treasury, will immediately issue bonds, and by such action the enactment of a free coinage law by the government will be postponed indefinitely. Mr. Bland believes if the free coinage men hold out the demand from the moneyed men for the reneal of the the moneyed men for the repeal of the Sherman silver purchase law will be so great that they will agree to free coinage or something very near it to succeed in having this act repealed.

The indications are that the advocates of the 3 per cent bond amendment will have to recede from their position or else the entire bill will be killed and that will make n immediate extra session of congress an

Hatch Checked Again. Mr. Hatch checked Again.

Mr. Hatch and his anti-option bill were again forced to take a back seat in the house this morning when the motion was made to take up the Indian bill. Again Mr. Hatch for the second time opposed with a motion to consider the option bill and again he was knocked out by a two-thirds yets of the members present. The thirds vote of the members present. The house thus considered the Indian bill all day and has made but little progress. At the rate the house went today it will take all the week to complete it. The opponents of the anti-option bill evidenced a desire to talk long and often on the Indian bill, vidently intending to keep it before the house long enough to put an end to the option bill, but Mr. Hatch is not a man who gives up until he is absolutely whipped and he will make another effort to get his bill con-sidered tomorrow, though the indications are that it will meet the same fate accorded it

RUSHING THE APPROPRIATIONS.

The Senate Passes the Diplomatic Bill and Takes Up the Military Academy Bill. Washington, Fbruary 23.—The senate proceeded to the consideration of the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. There was no item in the bill that gave rise to any contest or discussion. As quickly as the clerk could read a bill it was pass ed.

The military academy appropriation bill was then taken up.

Non-Concurred in the Amendments The house appropriations committee this morning, by unanimous vote, authorized Chairman Holman to move non-concurrence in all the senate amendments to the sundry civil bill and agree to the request for a conference thereon. This includes the Sherman 3 per cent bond amendment. The committee's exting was taken to expedite man 3 per cent bond amendment. The committee's action was taken to expedite the bill. It is in the power of any member of the house to send the bill to the committee of the whole for consideration separately of each amendment. The silver men will insist before the bill goes to conference on a vote of the house on the bond amendment.

Mr. Dockery was authorized to move non-concurrence in all the senate amments to the legislative bill.

THAT LETTER OF CHAIRMAN HARRITY. Which Has Created a Great Sensation in Washington.

HE WANTED TO KNOW THE VIEWS

Of the New Members on the Silver ion-Some Congressmen Sec Displeased, However.

Washington, February 23 .- A Philadelphia special has the following text of a confidential letter sent out by Chairman Harrity of the national democratic commit-

Philadelphia, Pa., February 18.-My Dear Sir: An analysis of the vote in the house of representatives, Washington, upon the An-drew-Cate bill to repeal the Sherman act representatives, wasnington; upon the Andrew-Cate bill to repeal the Sherman act shows that there are fourteen democratic members of the present congress who have been re-elected and who did not vote on February 9th on "ordering the previous question," and that there are seventy-six newly elected democratic members, thus making ninety democrats who will sit in the house of representatives of the next congress who never voted upon the measure looking to the repeal of the Sherman act. It is important to know what the probably attitude of these minety democratic members will be toward a similar measure when offered in the next congress. Will you kindly obtain this information, getting it as accurately and as quickly as possible, and forward the same to me upon the enclosed blank at as early a date as possible? Please be good enough to treat this correspondence as confidential. For your convenience I annex a list of the ninety democratic members whose position on the silver question it is desired to sition on the silver question it is desired know. Yours respectfully, WILLIAM F. HARRITY.

A copy of this letter was sent to each of the ninety members of the house named in Mr. Harrity's list. Open discussions in congress today were not half so interest ing as private discussion on Mr. Harrity' silver letter and the completed cabine of the next administration. The two sub jects were interwoven in conversation and many of the views expressed were exceed-ingly forcible. Speaking of the Harrity letter, Senator Harris said:

"I, for one, will never consent to the repeal of the Sherman law without the substitution of something in its place that recognizes the use of silver as money. So far as predicting what the next house, or the next congress, may do on the mone; question, I think it is idle to say that the next congress will consent to the repeal of the Sherman act without the substitution of another measure of some sort which of another measure of some sort which will, as I have said, recognize the use of silver as money. This will be the situation of affairs regardless of what Mr. Harrity or any one else may say or do."

Over on the house side the silver and anti-silver men took diametrically opposite views of the Harrity letter. Mr. Bland, leader of the free coinage democrats, said: "I think it a piece of impudence to say the least about it."

Mr. Pierce; of Tennessee, who has been perhaps the most indefatigable worker in the house in behalf of free silver coinage, said: "I think the letter an infamous outrage. It is another effort to bulldose the irroming members of congress, back of which I believe is Cleveland, just as I believe he was back of a recent editorial, lieve he was back of a recent editorial, saying members who voted for free coinage would find the administration fighting them in their districts. I believe the next house, like this one, will stand by the interests of their constituents and will not be buildozed by the national committee, Cleveland or anybody else. Members of the house will remember that while Cleveland holds the patronage, the people hold the hallots?

holds the patronage, the people hold the ballots."
"Well." said Watson, populist leader from Georgia, "I have not read it carefully, but it looks to me as though Cleveland was snapping the whip over 'the boys.' It appears to me that Cleveland is attempting to build up Wall street aristocracy."

Mr. Otis, of Kansas, also a people's party representative, looked upon the letter as a meddlesome and entirely uncalled for effort to secure a premuture declaration of a meadlesome and entirely included for er-fort to secure a premature declaratio of opinion from men who would be called upon to vote upon the question. "It will not take well with the western democrats. They will not be dictated to by Mr. Harrity," was Jerry Simpson's com-ment.

"I have not read the letter but the national committee has nothing to do with the matter," said Representative William L. Wilson, of West Virginia.

Wilson, of West Virginia.

Mr. Springer, chairman of the committee on ways and means, said: "Of course the letter is all right. Mr. Harrity was merely seeking for information. The letter was a confidential one and I do not understand how it happened to be published, but there is nothing wrong about it."

Mr. Hatch falls back upon his record for an answer as to his opinion.

Suspended in New Orleans During the Funeral. New Orleans, February 23.-The funeral of General Beauregard today was one of the largest and most imposing ever wit-nessed in this city. All of the exchanges nessed in this city. All of the exchanges were closed as a mark of respect to the deceased general, while business in the courts and other public offices was virtually suspended. Early this morning the family of the general arrived at the city hall and were assigned a room adjoining the council chamber, where the remains lay in state. All day a constant stream of people poured through the city hall to get a ast glimpse of the form of the well-known soldier. A detail of veterans assisted the regular police force in keeping order.

Among those who arrived this morning to take part in the ceremonies were Gov-ernor Foster and party from Baton Rouge, ernor Foster and party from Baton Rouge, members of Raphael Semmes's Camp of Confederate Veterans from Mobile, and Colonel J. B. Hereford and General Calbell, of the trans-Mississippi department. The cortege moved from the city hall a little after 3 o'clock for Metaire cemetery. This afternoon at 3 o'clock the remains were borne to their resting place. The honorary pallbearers numbered nearly a hundred, including prominent confederate soldiers and statesmen.

The interment was at Metaire cematery, in the tomb of the Army of Fenu see. Throughout the day a steady stream of people poured through the council chamber, wherein the remains of the dead warrior lay. Many distinguished visitors were mong those who called. The family of the general arrived at the hall early and proceeded to the room of the clerk in the rear of the mortuary chamber and remained there during the remainder of the day. The funeral services were conducted according to the rites of the Catholic church by Rev. Father Lablean, of St. Angustine church, who was an intimate friend of the deceased.

For Church Disestablishment For Church Disestablishment.

London, February 23.—Herbert Asquith, the home secretary, introduced in the house of commons today a bill suspending the creation of a new interest in churches in Wales. The measure is the first practical step in the direction of disendowing and disestablishing the church in Wales, to which the liberal party is distinctly pledged. Asquith, in his speech introducing the bill, said that the membership of the established church in Wales included hardly one-fourth of the population. The question of disestablishing, he added, was in the main a Welsh one. The decision of the people given at the last general election had distinctly shown this fact.

Nashville, Tenn., February 23 .- (Sp 'His death was due to alcoholism," is the verdict brought in by the coroner's jury that investigated the death of Harvey Weakley, which occurred suddenly this morning. But there are some people who solemnly shake their head. The circumstances of the death are very peculiar, Weakley was on trial in the criminal or yesterday, being charged with house breing and larceny. When he was placed the witness stand in his own behalf, attorney general asked him if he was not the man who sprinkled chloroform on Mr. an Mrs. Sanders and their children the night of the burglary. Weakley raised his hand as if adding selemnity to his statement and declared that if he had anything to the burglary he had anything to the hundren had a second the hundren had with the burglary he hoped the Almighty would not let him live long enough to ge out of the witness chair. Weakley was at a dance last night and apparently in very good spirits. At 5 o'clock this morning, however, his wife was awakened by piercing screams and saw Weakley leap from the bed, stagger across the floor with his hands clasped over his heart. When she reached him he was dead.

In his methods he was manly and frank. Ready to express his opinion upon all oc-casions, he granted the same privilege to others, and held in the highest admiration those who were brave enough to speak what they felt and manly enough to sve what they felt and manly enough to sustain their contentions. He early became ned with the deepest chivalry. In the ed; by the slightest affliction he was readily moved. He was endowed with an acute appreciation of the duties which one man owed to another. An infraction of the code by which he held himself bound brought upon the offender the sharpest contempt. His errors grew out of his excessive sense of the honor by which men should regulate their lives. The acme of generations of noble sires, he was peculiarly chivalrous, and over-sensitive to the recurs. hivalrous, and over-sensitive to the rough er ways by which men of this modern age deal with each other. The man does not live who can charge Tom Cobb Jackson with an unworthy act, nor with the expression of an unworthy thought. Noble and brave, his generous spirit was admired, and won for him the respect of even those who sometimes felt called upon to differ with the means which he adopted to enforce the punctilio of his own life upon them. The last public expressions he ever made were in defense of a friend who was under a cloud, and who had few to speak for him a word of defense. It ground the spirit of young Jackson to hear flippant words spoken about a man which the ground out a man which the speaker dared not use in his presence. It was like him to protect the name of an absent friend, and that friend's misfortune made him feel duty all the stronger. A noble spirit was his, and one to be cherished by the sorrowing father and mother, who are this day bowed down in grief.

Harry Jackson, mother of the dead man, is in Athens, while his sister is in New York. They have been telegraphed to return home. The announcements for the funeral will be made today.

Mr. Jackson, in his family connections, was perhaps one of the most notable young men in the state. On his mother's side of family, he was the grandson of Gen Thomas R. R. Mr. Jackson has spent his entire life in this city, with the possible exception of a very short period spent in Savannah, and the period of his school days spent at Athens, Ga., and at other institutions of learning in this country.

He entered the Boys' High school of this city in the fall of 1880. He remained in that school until the spring of 1883, when he left a short while prior to graduation, and went to Paris, Ky., where he resumed his studies in one of the institutions of that place.

On the 22d of February 1886, the anniversary of the Phi Kappa Society, he was honored by that organization with the office of speaker. His speech on that occasion was a remarkable production, and elicited nucl. comment on account of its excellence from many prominent men who heard it.

THE BLACKSMAKE AND THE RATTLERS.

Jacksonville, Fla., February 23.—(Special.)
A thrilling fight between a black snake and a rattlesnake was witnessed on the Cunnings' orange grove by a party of gentlemen from Daytona. For several weeks past a black snake about ten feet long has made its headquarters under an old crib on the grove, appearing occasionally, but never allowing himself to be killed. He was as large around as one's wrist and as fierce a looking fellow as one would want to encounter. The gentlemen were seated under a large palmetto tree enjoying the pleasant afternoon when they noticed a rattlesnake creep slowly and cautiously from the brush heap and coil himself with head in the air and eyes turned toward the party as if to say: "Here I am." One gentlemen seized a club, but the others persuaded him to delay his attack and watch the reptile for awhile and see what it would do. They had a chance to size up the stronger, which was about six feet long and of a grayish striped color. In a few minutes the black snake was seen to appear from under the crib, fifty feet distant, and move slowly towards the rattlesnake. "Now for a fight," said Mr. Bert Walk-black fellow, carrying his head high in the air and occasionally dropping it, apparently studying the ground around which he was to make the attack. It was plainly evident that the black snake wanted to fight. When within twenty feet of the other creature he stopped, raised his head

time. The ground between them was clear, not a stick or a stone being noticed for many yards.

The rattlesnake raised his head and threw out his tongue and seemed to be prepared for an encounter. They really reminded one of a couple of desperate men just entering the arena for a fight to the death. Presently the black champion started on a circle around his prey, getting nearer to the rattler every minute. The rattler never took his eye from his approaching enemy and his head going around reminded the looker on of the movements of a corkscrew. When within six feet of the rattler, the black fellow flew around so fast that you could hardly tell what it was. It was like taking a string tied to a stick and twirling it with all one's might. Suddenly, the two came together and immediately became entwined about each other, rolling over and over in the dust. This lasted fully five minutes. Then there was a lull and the blacksnake was seen to have his adversary by the throat with his mouth. His body was twisted about the rattler's body, and every few seconds he would give a squeeze that sent the rattler so much further toward his end.

In ten minutes the black hero dropped the body of his victim, blew himself up took one last look and then slowly wound off into the brush.

Dr. Strong's thirteen-year-old son was arrested far some trivial offense, while playing leapfrog. The officer called the hurry-up wagon to send him to the barracks. Dr. Strong, finding that there was no alternative and that the how must go in like some native and that the boy must go in like son tramp, got in the wagon and accompanied him. "Only this and nothing more." There is this to be said about Johann Hoff's Malt Extract that those who have once taken it discard all others. This is clearly indicated by the rapid increase in its sales. When patients everywhere have once adopted Johann Hoff's Malt Ex-tract the difference between it and inferior extracts usually sold as "Hoff's Extract" is so manifestly apparent that they will not bear even the mention of any other. And the reason is that it is not only more grateful to the palate, but its action is immediate and its results permanent. Johann Hoff's Malt Extract for the space of nearly half a cen-tury has been a blessing to myriads of sufferers from dyspepsia, sleeplessness and general debility. ge Bill Against Engledaw for Emmittes to Meet in New York.

Macon, Ga., February 23 .- (Special.)will W. B. Sparks be removed as receiver of the Georgia Southern and Florida road? ications are that he will not. The and wishes of the People of Macon and of the junior securities of the Georgia thern road are that he will not. Par-who some time ago might have desired removal are now fighting for his retenthe road can be best served by keeping parks as receiver. They believe that by on of his long connection with the road, nd his thorough and complete knowledge every detail connected with the system, he is best qualified to protect the propety, keep it intact and build it up. The my party now seeking to have Mr. Sparks osit Company of Baltimore, who is trustee for the bondholders. The Mercantile has fled a petition asking for the removal of parks. Hon. Hoke Smith and Hon. Tom lenn of Atlanta, and Hon. Washington he hearing on this petition was began this ning at 10 o'clock in Bibb superior before Judge Jenkins, of Entonton odge C. L. Receiver Sparks is represented by Gus-th, Guerry & Hall, and Bacon & Mil-er. A number of other lawyers are also practically for Sparks, though engaged by let. A number of other lawyers are also practically for Sparks, though engaged by other parties to protest against Sparks's removal. For instance, Judge Hammond, of the Atlanta law firm of Hall & Hammond, represents Ober, of Baltimore, a wealthy gentleman largely interested in the Georgia Southern. Ex-Attorney Gental Clifford Anderson and son represent the stockholders of the Macon Construction Company, which built the Georgia Southern noad, and they are opposed to the removal of Sparks. McTighe & Co., of Memphis, entractors, who were the original movers in the litigation which placed the Georgia Southern in the hands of a receiver, and who at one time since desired the removal of Sparks, now join in the request that he he not removed. They are represented by Hardeman, Davis & Turner, of Macon. Other lawyers represent other parties sposing the removal of Sparks. It is said that even all of the bondholders do not wish the removal of Sparks. The case will be very vigorously contested by both sides. The fight awakens much intest all throughout Georgia and in Baltimore, New York and other cities. The ir both sides. The fight awakens much inreset all throughout Georgia and in Baltimore, New York and other cities. The large crowd in the courtroom shows the public concern. Adhlitional interest is let to the case from the fact that the fight for the removal of Sparks is lead by then. Hoke Smith, Cleveland's appointee as secretary of interior. He is the center face of the large gathering, the object of all eyes.

The bonded indebtedness of the road is $2,20000. About $2,500,000 of this sm agreed last year to pool for their named protection and interest. Some of the bondholders have not entered the pool. Transportection and interest. Some of Randholders have not entered the pool. The in the pool are represented by following special appointed committee. P. Smart, of Savannah, chairman, Rans B. Gresham, D. U. Hermann, Mam Checkley Shaw, Charles Watkins, Early Rice and Charles D Fisher. This camittee was appointed at a meeting of backbolders held in Baltimore October 3, 1892. The bondholders in the pool greed to deposit with the Mercantile Irust and Deposit Company, of Baltimore, that first mortgage bonds with the compandue on and after July 1, 1892, which are to be held subject to the order of the above named committee. The said committee, or a majority of them, are authorized to represent the owners of said bods in all proceedings instituted for the collection of the same, or the enforcement of the rights of the owners thereof and to do whatever acts in their judgment may be of the rights of the owners thereof and to do whatever acts in their judgment may be necessary or desirable for the protection of the interests of said bondholders. It is reported that at a meeting of the bondholders in Baltimore last fall they did not acquiesce in the proposition to petition for the removal of Sparks and it is mid that the above named special committee of seven are not a unit for the removal of Sparks, three of the committee dissenting to the removal. But the bondholders in forming the pool agreed to allow the committee to represent them and the contract of agreement stipulates that this representation can be made by a majority of the committee.

Thus the matter has come into court, some time ago the committee appointed an amert, Mr. Hardee, of Savannah, to examine the Georgia Southern road and he made a most favorable report as to its physical condition, management, etc. The further and deeper an examination is made into Receiver Sparks's management the more satisfactory are the results revealed. The junior securities say that the object of having Sparks removed is that the bond-holders may get a receiver of their was election appointed, run down the road and buy it in at a song. Under Receiver Sparks the road is being built up, and improved and is estimated to be worth six and a half million dollars: It is bonded for any $3,420,000, and has a floating indebt-shees of perhaps $160,000. A large mount of floating indebtedness has been mad since Receiver Sparks has had control, and it is calculated that the entire floating indebtedness will have been paid by January 1, 1894, at which time the payment of Interest on bonds will be resumed. The mod has defaulted in two semi-annual symmets of interest, towit, July 1892, and annary 1893. The interest due in July 1893 will also be defaulted. The road readily makes net more than enough to by the interest, but much of the earnings have been applied to the payment of the found interest. The present bonds of $3,420,000 bear 6 per cent interest per annum. A synopsis of the petition for Mr. Sparks's removal, and his answer thereto, have already been published in The Constitution. The proceedings of the hearing today opend with the reading of the petition and answer and various other reverse. Thus the matter has come into court, Secretary McKendree and Third Vice President Spence, of the Mercantile Trust Company, testified in a general way to the deposit of bonds with their company. Chairman Smart, of the bondholders' committee, testified on the same line. One thing of importance in his testimony was drawn out by Sparks's attorneys to the effect that a few months ago and shortly before the petition for Sparks's removal, Smart went over the Georgia Southern road with Sparks on a tour of inspection and Smart, at the time, expressed himself as greatly pleased with the excellent physical condition of the road and said it was worth $1,000,000 more than the full amount of bonds. Every one admits that the road is worth more now than when Smart went over it last fall. Though Smart is one of the most active movers for Sparks's removal, his testimony was really more in Sparks's favor than against him.

The hearing will be resumed in the morning. A True Bill.

The grand jury has found a true bill against Oscar Engledaw, charged with embezzling $2,000, while bookkeeper for Julian Bros., retail dry goods dealers. Engledaw is a young man of good address and family. He says he is not guilty, and thinks he will be able to establish his innocence at the trial. He is now in jail, in default of band.

The Southwestern Committee.

It is probable that next week the committee, consisting of Captain W. G. Raoul, T. B. Gresham, of Baltimore, and Hon. Frank Miller, of Augusta, appointed at the recent meeting of the stockholders of the Southwestern railroad held in this city, will meet in New York to enter upon the discharge of their duty, which involves a full investigation and examination of the plan of reorganization proposed for the Central railroad. Captain W. G. Raoul, who was in Mexico at the time of his appointment by the meeting at Macon, is expected in Atlanta on next Sunday, and he will shortly leave for New York. Mr. Miller will go from Augusta and Mr. Gresham will go from Baltimore. The result of their labors will be awaited with great interest. They will report to a "neeting of the stockholders of the Southwestern railroad to be held at Macon subject to the oall of the chairman of the last meeting, Mr. Washington Dessau.

The Experts Appointed. The grand jury has appointed Messrs. T. O. Chestney and R. W. Jemison as experts to thoroughly examine the books of the county treasurer, Mr. W. G. Smith, and the tax collector, Mr. Albert Jones.

Military Matters. Military Matters.

The Maçon military are not at all pleased with the Hawley bill, now before the senate of the United States, which requires that all volunteer troops must enlist for a term of not less than three years. Officers of the companies here have received copies of the resolution adopted by the soldiers of Savannah, in protest against the bill and which resolutions were published in The Constitution yesterday. The resolutions are enthusiastically approved by the Macon soldiers. The resolutions are enthusiastically approved by the Macon soldiers.

ATHENS' WATER.

The Question Looms Up Again in An-

THE Y. M. C. A. ANNIVERSARY.

Other News in Athens-Funeral of Mrs. Newton-A Distinguished Escort.

An Old Clock. Athens, Ga., February 23.—(Special.)—The announcement that the old water company will on March 1st shut down their plant, announcement that the old water company will on March 1st shut down their plant, which means that from that date a valuable plece of property will become worthless and the seeming unconcern with which this move is taken by the local powers of the company, has given rise to a considerable amount of gossip about the affair.

Investigation by leading attorneys in the city of the company's condition has brought to light a most remarkable state of affairs from a business standpoint, and it may be that the men in immediate control of the works will not be among the losers if they never get another cent out of their property here. The records at the Clarke county courthouse show that within the past year previous to January, 1, 1803, there had been issued and disposed of one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars' worth of bonds on the water works plant in Athens by its managers. A New York trust company, which deals extensively in southern securities, was made the trustees of the property by the terms of the deal, but the old officers remained in active control. It was made a part of that trade also that if the water company failed to pay the interest on these bonds promptly the first failure would forfelt the entire property.

It is stated on good authority that the entire cost of the property here was not over $00,000. On January 1, 1893, the company failed to pay the interest on the bonds and the matter was placed in the hands of Athens attorneys. Now it seems that the old company has realized $125,000 on the $60,000 invested, and will be in instead of out, if they never earn another dollar. All they will do will be to forfelt the property. The plant will be shut down March 1st, by orders of Manager Howell, and will probably never be operated again.

Mrs. Mary Jordon Newton was laid to rest in the Oconee cemetery this afternoon. The funeral ceremonies were conducted at the First Methodist church at 3 o'clock and were largely attended.

The pallbearers were Messrs. J. B. L. Cobb, John N. Carlton, H. H. Carlton, Jr.; George E. Lucas, E. L. Johnson, W. McK. Cobb, W. C. Davis and E. D. Sledge.

As an honorary escort the following old citizens of Athens were in attendance: Judge Howell Cobb, Professor L. H. Charbonnier, Mr. James A. Carlton, Professor William Rutherford, Judge Young L. G. Harris, Mr. R. L. Moss, Dr. John S. Linton, Captain R. Nickerson, Dr. James Camak and Dr. J. C. Orr. Orr.
Mrs. Newton possessed many rare charms and graces, and her death is a sad loss to the social and Christian community.

A Handsome Vehicle.

Mr. W. B. Bowden, the well-known 'bus and transfer man, has just had made one of the handsomest vehicles ever seen in Georgia. It is a large, richly finished omnibus, bearing the name of "Nancy Hanks" in glittering gold letters. It cost a large sum of money. For Forty-Three Years. The Banner prints this interesting story of an old clock in the store of Captain A. S. Manderville, whose jewelry business was closed up Tuesday by creditors: "In the store of Mr. A. S. Manderville, on closed up Tuesday by creditors:

"In the store of Mr. A. S. Manderville, on Broad street, there stands an old-fashioned clock which was made in Liverpool. It possesses a remarkable history, full of interest from the mere fact that for forty three years without cessation it has steadily ticked away the minutes and the seconds of the passing years. Not one single second has it falled to record during that long period of time, during which its owner has been in business.

"The storms of winter have not chilled its movement, the warmth of summer has never enervated its action. The din of civil war did not stop it nor the horors of reconstruction days terrify it. As it ticked away, more than a generation has passed. Great men who once looked to it for correct time have been laid to rest in the tomb, and countless thousands who have looked into the pialn and unpretentious face have long since joined the silent majority.

"And yet, the old clock ticks on, as if unwarded with a constant movement of its aged hands. Like man, it, too, must sometimes lay down its work, and some day, sooner or later, it will cease to register the seconds and the minutes. It will be finished, but up to date it has certainly done good service."

remarkable report, emanating from anta and being generally published ighout the state, made its first ap ance a few days ago in The Macon

In effect, the report, which has in every ance been given the consideration of icuous display, has it that there is be a vast combination of the newser interests of Atlanta-that all the s now published in this city are to e a part of The Constitution—that other two papers are to move, lock k and barrel, into The Constitution ding, and that, as a result of this ping consolidation cortain things expected to follow in the next confor governor and for senator.

Vere it not for the fact that the sens article referred to is being so ally published, The Constitution ould pay no attention to it, but, in that shence may not be miscond we take occasion to say that there ot one word of truth in the report far as it concerns this paper.

gn is now engaged in apbe echo every manifestation ism that is made by those h high places during the An amazing and de and facle, truly! The spirit of powerful politicians.

We call attention to this freakish now because we believe it to be highly impolitic, not to say dangerous. The cratic organization in the south is sure to be weakened by such a display. and the strain may be too great for it to bear. The developments in congress and out, in regard to the financial situation, are not too assuring. We do not know how long it may be before a wave of disgust will sweep over the farmers of the south. We do not know, in fine, what the next two years have in store for the party in the south, and no man knows. But, if the prospects were the most promising, it would still be a most vicious and demoralizing policy for newspapers which have denounced the spirit of independentism in the farmers of the south to applaud its manifestations in politicians who hold high offices.

In this matter, no man who believes in his party and his principles can afford to play favorites. There is but one safe course for all to pursue-high or low, private citizen or official-and that is to stand firmly by the party and the men who have made it what it is. It cannot be a "machine" to be destroyed by mugwumps in New York, and a sacred organ zation to be preserved in the south. Independentism cannot be a matter to be applauded in an official, no matter how high he may be, and denounced in a southern farmer.

And right here the trouble lies. Those who have already been tempted to go astray will find an unanswerable argument ready made to their hands, manu factured by democratic editors. If independentism is a noble virtue in a democratic official, it cannot be a less noble virtue in a democratic farmer.

Away with such demoralizing doctrine Let democratic editors open their eyes to the situation. Democracy and independentism will not mix.

A Notable Appointment.

The appointment of the Hon. Hilary A Herbert, of Alabama, as secretary of the navy in Mr. Cleveland's cabinet will be generally satisfactory, without regard to sectional and party lines.

Mr. Herbert is one of the best equipped men in our public service. He has been a member of the house for many years, and his work on the floor and on various important committees has shown the breadth and the thoroughness character istic of true statesmanship. His long experience as chairman of the committee on naval affairs pre-eminently fits him for the high office to which he has been called and it is gratifying to note the fact that his recent report on naval marers has caused even such republican papers as The New York Tribane to commend it for its broad and statesmanlike views of American policy, especially in the matter of developing naval industries at home. The distinguished Alabamian has long enjoyed the confidence of the country His Culture, conservatism, indefatigable work, uncompromising democracy and thorough Americanism have caused the Tank and file, not only of his own party. out of the opposition as well, to look to him for wise counsel and valuable ser vice in important emergencies, and it is needless to say that they have never been disappointed.

Mr. Cleveland has been particularly fortunate in this selection. The new secretary brings to his position an accurate knowledge of naval affairs, and his policy already developed as chairman of the naval committee makes it assured that in building up the American navy he will see that it develops the home industries connected with it. The appointment is one that will evoke favor is one in which the south feels especial pride and satisfaction. Secretary Herbert will be the right man in the right

Presidential Courtesies. It is gratifying to see the pleasant relations existing in these common-sense days between the distinguished leaders of opposing political parties. Before Mr. Cleveland was first inaugu rated, he was entertained as the guest of nonor at a dinner given by Presiden Arthur. Four years ago he gave a dinner to Mr. Harrison, and now the latter gentleman invites Mr. Cleveland to dine at the white house, and his note of invitation and the reply are just such as would be exchanged between intimate friends. This is as it should be, Sensible Americans no longer carry their partisan rivalry into social life. But it was not always thus. A contemporary recalls the fact that John Quincy Adams hated Jackson so bitterly that he did not invite him to the mansion, nor accompany him to the capitol to be inaugurated, but went off for a horseback ride in the suburbs when the hour arrived for his successor to take the oath of office. Andrew Johnson also refused to participate in the inauguration of General Grant, going off to the house of a friend to get ready for his departure to Tennessee, while Grant was on his way to the white house. We live in a different era. We can fight each other to the death in the olitical arena, and yet be friends when the battle is over. We are a wonderfully clever set of fellows, and a vast improve ment upon our predecessors.

Women in the Patent Office.

During recent years, there has been a great increase in the number of inventions patented by women.

Last year, more than four hundred applications were filed by women in the patent office, and they cover inventions ranging from buttonhole flower holders up to devices for railway construction. Among them are appliances designed for the comfort of the sterner sex, such as improved suspenders and self-attaching eckties. In fact, the most extraordinary versatility is shown by these ingenious inventors. Now, here is a remunerative field in which sex is not considered. Every invention has to stand on its merits. If it is useful, there is money in it, and it matters not whether the inventor is a man or a woman. Hundreds of women who are trying to make a living in occupations not at all suited to them would find it easier to invent something that would yield them a small fortune. In New England, there are men who are professional inventors. They make it their business to closely observe every-

the time in the effort to think of some improvement that can be patented and profitably sold. Some of them are very uccessful, and there is no reason why women should not compete with them. It is true that all persons are not gifted with the inventive faculty, but they can at least test their powers in this respect, and ascertain whether it will pay them to proceed or try something else.

The Return of an Exile. The return to New York of John C. Eno, the defaulting bank president, after nine years voluntary exile in Canada, is the sensation of the day. He has, of his own accord, left Quebec, where he was absolutely safe, and where his two daughters reside, and has given himself up to the authorities to stand his trial. It is one of the celebrated cases of this generation. Eno used his bank's collateral to obtain money for himself, and lost about three million dollars of it in speculation. His father made good the defalcation, but eleven indictments for forgery resulted, and the banker fled to Canada

Why does this man now return to his old home to be tried, and go to prison in the event of the enforcement of the law? There have been other fugitives from justice, in the past, who could answer the question if they would. Without a single exception, all the defaulters who ever placed themselves in Eno's position have admitted, when they took others into their confidence, that they suffered indescribabe torment in their exile. Even when they were safe, they winced under every glance from a passing stranger, and it seemed to them that life was not worth living. They fert that they were branded and despised, and in their dreams they suffered the penalty of the law night after night. When they were in hiding or in disguise, eluding arrest, their state of mind was far worse The rustling of a leaf, a strange voice, an unexpected salutation from a passerby, an ordinary question from a fellow traveler concerning their destination or the place whence they came-all these trifles filled them with terror. As Shake speare has it: "The thief doth fear each bush an officer." Is it any wonder that such wanderers and outcasts find their burden too heavy to bear? Finally, in sheer despair, unnerved and broken-hearted, they wive themselves up, and almost joyfully accept their punishment. Every wrong-doer since Cain has bitterly realized the eternal truth that the way of the transgressor is hard, and that his sin will find him out.

Eno has suffered, but he should suffer still more. We must punish our big criminals-the men who steal millions, as well as the poor fellows who steal a trifle for their starving families-or else there will be a general paralysis of law; and society will go to pieces.

The St. Louis Republic says that Mr Carlisle knows that if he goes to borrowing gold on interest to take up certificates of eposits issued on silver bullion, he will split the democracy so badly that he won't be able to tell which party he belongs to. There is a good deal of consola tion in that nubbin of information if Colonel Jones knows what he is talking about. Jenks's pastor seems to have been placed n an awkward predicament. The Reading shake-up is a movement in the direction of sound business methods. It seems that Jenks was not in it. He elonged to the horse marines.

It is rumored that Jerry Simpson has been going about with a bodyguard. The understanding in this settlement is that it Jerry is attacked he can defend himself with his socks. The Vesuvius has not a more perfect armament.

A few more democratic appointm Mr. Harrison would help things wonder fully.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Mr. Butler, of Iowa, has introduced in the house a bill to establish a truer figure of American constitutional liberty, and another to amend the great seal of the United States. The first provides that after July 4th next, the Goddess of Liberty shall be represented by a young woman of full stature, with mature development, and proportions, wearing. by a young woman of this state, with ma-ture development and proportions, wearing high laced boots, reaching midway between the ankle and knee, hose reaching to the thigh, short skirts reaching downward to a point just above the knee, close-fitting bodice point just above the above, and a cap molded and sleeves to the elbow, and a cap molded from a blue pansy bud. She is to bear for arms, at her left hip, in places lightly over her right shoulder, a pen with the holder ex-tended, and on her breast, instead of a shield, an American ballot, in black and white. The other measure amends the law establishing the seal, so as to provide instead of the present crest, which appears above the head of the eagle, a glory breaking through a cloud pansy, surrounding thirteen stars, forming a constellation argent, and on an azure field.

POLITICS IN GENERAL

New York World: The proposition to tax the deposits in the savings banks is a propo-sition to tax thrift.

St. Louis Republic: Had Mr. Harrison re-elected we could have hardly escaped war in the next four years, and we will certainly not escape it much longer unless our diplomacy is freed from the spirit of meddling and in trigue which has characterized it during Mr Harrison's term.

New York Evening Post: Five of the new states are thus already in revolt agains the republicans, and even Washington mus not be counted upon too confidently to stan the party. It is one of the most extraordi nary transformation scenes ever wrought upo the stage of politics in this country. It show again, and most strikingly, how futile are th schemes of politicians to control the people.

New York Morning Advertiser: It is just possible that the Australian ballot law in Alabama may trouble a good many illiterate white voters. The negro is ambitious and inlined to study when permitted to do so. Unfound with a spelling book in his possession there is reason to believe that this secret ballot may work harm to the democratic party, despite the fact that the press dispatch from Montgomery says that the new law "means everlasting democratic rule in Alabama."

Boston Herald: The public hostility to gigantic corporations is manifesting itself so strongly and widely that the politicians cannot venture to ignore it. The power of the mo-nopolists to prevent corrective legislation is bassing away. The complaints of the consumers are rising all over the land. have found an echo at Washington, and the managers of the great trusts are in dismay.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Some of the democrats in congress are beginning to ask themselves whether, after all, there is any absolute assurance that the majority of the territories seeking admission could be relied on to vote the democratic ticket. This is a ensible precaution from a partisan stand point. The territories referred to are Art-zona, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Utah. In the election in 1892 for delegates to congress all these territories except Oklahoma went democratic. In most of the elections of the dozen years Arizona, New Mexico and tah declared for that party. It is reason ably certain that next year, if still in the ter ritorial stage, they will be on the same side, unless, in the interval, a republican tidal wave ets in. Oklahoma, the newest of the terri This is the only territory that the republican claim." This is the only territory that the emocrats concede to their foes.

MR. CLEVELAND'S VIEWS.

New York World: The republican organ that pretend to have discerned a weakenin Cleveland's purpose to secure a refor of the tariff probably do not deceive ther elves. They certainly will not deceive the country. The man who risked defeat for an otherwise sure re-election to the presidency by forcing the issue of tariff reform because he believed it to be right, and who has ad-hered steadfastly to that issue ever since, for not at all likely to weaked in its support now that he has been sustained by the people and put in power to carry out his policy.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Mr. Clevelan does not think that any good will be accomplished by the international monetary confer ence which is to re-open in Brussels about three months hence. He is probably correct in his opinion. Europe will never consent to bear her share of the burden of rehabilitating silver until the United States governme stops absorbing that metal. If this count had repealed the Sherman law and cut loos from all connection with the silver miners be fore the monetary conference opened last year

The Americus Times-Recorder has an editorial on the work of Colonel Livingston in congress. The Times-Recorder says:

"Few members of congress serving their first term have ever risen to prominence so quickly and so creditably as 'the Georgia cracker' from the fifth district. In congress Colonel Livingston has in the past year astonished even his warmest admirers by his development of breadth and strength; and quite recently he made a speech on the transfer of the pension bureau to the war department that placed him well to the front as one of the strongest debaters of the house. It is fortunate for Georgia that Colonel Livingston was re-elected, and the valuable service he is rendering the party, supplemented by another term yet to come, cannot but render him a very potent factor in the political problem in this state in the future. Colonel Livingston can probably be re-elected from the fifth for some time to come."

The Albany Herald says southwest Georgia is behind on water. The average ralifull from January to January has formerly been about sixty inches. But this average has been failling short of late years, and the fact is one that should engage the attention of scientific men. The Herald gives these additional facts.

"This region has been short on water ever since the memorable drouth of 1883, when there was not enough rainfall to lay the dust in the streets of Albany from the 16th day of July until the 26th of December. That year the ponds and all of nature's reservoirs went dry. Their bottoms cracked, and the water disappeared. The ponds, after they have once gone dry, don't hold water as formerly, and in this 'pondy' region of southwest Georgia there are now very few ponds of water to be found. Alligator pond, once the state, is now virtually dry, and is more like an open prairie than a pond or lake. And so with nearly all the ponds or lakes in this region. Places that would have floated a side-wheel steamboat, a few years ago, are now as dry as an old field in the summer-

Afr. Clark Howell, of The Atlanta Constitu-tion, is doing good work for his party and the country. The series of letters which he is writing and has written in The New York Herald will reach a class of readers which he cannot reach through his own paper, and will therefore do more to satisfy the northern people as to the purposes of the democratic party than anything that could be written by a northern democratic party than anything that count by a northern democrat.

These letters show that the managing editor of one of the leading papers of the south demands no more than the carrying out of the platform of his party. He shows that his section demands no special favor; that all she demands is that all the people shall be treated alike with justice. This she has a she demanus is that treated alike with justice. This she has tright to demand, and this her people believes the demand of the demand of the demand.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Where the Responsibility Lies. Editor Constitution: One way to preven these sudden outbreaks of defalcation which comes with such a shock upon the publi is for every business to have frequent invis-tigations. No business should depend upo trusted agents or confidential bookkeepers most trusted agent will make m

It is an almost universal rule that business is honestly conducted, that integrity prevalis among subordinates, and nothing does more to encourage this than severe scrutiny—a thing which honesty will seek and persuade. Next, the directors should direct, not simply lend occasional and stinted assistance in the business of a bank. They should familiarize themserves with the methods and accounts of those who handle the funds and keep a constant insight into every detail of the business. More than that. They should know something of the habits and daily life of the men in the bank's employ, in order that the change sure to be wrought in a man when thieving, can easily be detected. Such constant oversight on the directors' part, coupled with a thorough performance of the duties they are chosen to perform, ought to keep any bunk out of robber's clutches. It is not easy to devise new methods to take the place of the banking system of today, but with the board of directors surely lies the power to guard the interests of a bank.

One of the examples is The Iowa State Register, which has discovered a second Benedict Arnold in the presidential chair. With Benedict Arnold just leaving the pres idential chair by the constitutional method and Judas Iscariot going into the state de-partment in the same way, the inference is irresistible that the country is going to the dogs. Testerday Afternoon.

About 11 o'clock yesterday morning gos-sip got something to feast upon in the fol-lowing typewritten announcement which was posted on the doors of the bank:

There will be a meeting of the creditors of the Gate City National bank in the basement of the courthouse at 4 o'clock p. m., on this, Thursday, February 23, 1803 (teday), to take action looking to the protection of their rights.

M. F. AMOROUS,
M. F. COLE,
J. C. MASSENGALE.

Rumor contorted this announcement into many shapes. It was made the basis of the groundless story that a meeting of the tockholders of the bank and its depositors was to be held and an understanding reached. But the announcement meant no more than appeared on its face. It meant an effort to get at the truth.

By 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon fully 250 people had assembled in the basement of the courthouse. There was the substantial man of business, the lawyer, the physical statement of the courthouse in the substantial man of business, the lawyer, the physical statement of the courthouse in the substantial man of business, the lawyer, the physical statement of the courthouse in the substantial man of business, the lawyer, the physical statement of the courthouse in the substantial man of business, the lawyer, the physical statement of the courthouse in the substantial man of business, the lawyer, the physical statement of the courthouse in the substantial man of business, the lawyer is the substantial man of business, the lawyer is the substantial man of business. sician, depositors small and large. In the gathering was perhaps a dozen ladies. Their faces were anxious looks. The crowd at once set them down as depositors, who wanted to know what chance they had of getting their money.

At a little after 4 o'clock Mr. Martin Amorous ascended the judge's stand and rapped for order. He made a few remarks, setting forth the purposes of the gathering, and outlining the circumstances which led up to it. He considered it highly important that depositors should be acquainted with the true condition of affairs so that they could act wisely, and lose nothing by selling certificates of deposit for half their value. He believed that deposit-ors should act in unison, and this belief had etuated him with several others to issue the call for the meeting.

After these remarks Mr. Amorous was made chairman of the meeting and Mr. Tom Felder secretary. Chairman Amorous announced the meeting ready to proceed to business. A motion was made to appoint a committee of three to investigate into the real situation and report back to the depositors. This brought Mr. Jack Spalding to his feet.

"My idea is that the best way to prosaid he, "Is to appoint a committee of five to find out the details of the bank's situation. And that committee should report bac't to us some plan of action. Bank examiners and expert accountants have given us all sorts of assurances that the positors are perfectly safe and I am inclined to agree with them, for the thought is a very soothing one. But I would have felt better if they had printed some figures in support of their position. The figures will have to come. They will hurt. nobody. What we want is figures-figures that tell the story of the bank's condition. "Many of the depositors of this bank are not able to lose the money they have on deposit and they should be informed of the real condition of things, so that they may

At the conclusion of Mr. Spalding's renarks Chairman Amorous called for expressions of opinion from other depositors. Mr. James O. Parker, cashier Southern Exchange bank, and one of the largest depositors with the Gate City bank, said he did not believe in talking too much. He believed the best plan was to take some

Mr. Amorous said he wanted to know what chance he had of getting his money from the bank, and when he would get it. He had been offered 75 cents on the dollar for his claim, but had refused. He thought the depositors should act together for their mutual interest, and act so as to avoid useless litigation. He said we had notable examples of cases where large amounts of assets had been eaten up in costs of litiga tion and lawyers' fees. Mr. Hemphill went on and advised those that had claims not to sacrifice them, but to hold on to them, for he believed they would realize dollar for dollar and that if any of the depositors were compelled to have their money his bank—the Atlanta Trust and Banking Company—would loan them money on their claims. This was received with great applause.

Mr. Hemphill's short talk did more than anything else to restore the confidence of the depositors in the bank. In referring to it later Mr. Amorous said that he was glad the meeting had been held if nothing else had been accomplished than the hear-ing of the hopeful, cheerful words of Mr.

The Bank Examiner Comes.

President Hill spent the day at the bank yesterday. Early in the morning Bank Examiner Campbell reached the city from Montgomery, where he was attending to his official duties when he was telegraphed of the decision of President Hill.

Mr. Hill left the bank late yesterday afternoon and went to his home for an evening of rest, which he so much needed. There he was seen by a Constitution representative and talked without restraint about the bank's troubles, which have fallen more heavily on him than any one else.

"I have been at the bank nearly all day," said he, "and have spent not a single idle moment. The bank is now entirely under the control of the bank examiner and he will report to the comptroller of the currency. He will go ahead with his duties just as rapidly as possible, I presume."

"Do you still think that the depositors will receive the full amount of their deposits, Mr. Hill?" he was asked.

"I am absolutely certain of it," said Mr. Hill, with emphasis. There was a tone of unmistakable sincerity and positiveness in his words. Further than that Mr. Hill thinks the stockholders will lose nothing. "Do you know that, but I have been criticised severely for not offering a reward for Redwine sooner?" Mr. Hill was asked. "Yes, I know that, but I have paid no attention to it. I have gone ahead and done what I thought was my duty regardless of public censue. I do not know that I have not been able to get the directors of the bank together. I am aware that all sorts of rumors are afloat, but I have had no time to notice them and knowing them all to be absolutely false they do not need my attention. I have acted in the very best faith from the first. I did what I thought best for the protection of the interests of the depositors and stockholders."

Mr. Hill has been worked excessively since the trouble was first announced and he feels the blow to the bank keenly. The bank was a to him.

Mr. Welborn Hill was also greatly wrought up over the affair. He was not at work in the sheriff's office during the day. Mr. Ed McCandless was one of the greatest sufferers. He has been with the bank for sufferers. He has been with the bank for a long time and was strongly wedded to its interests. He was downcast and sad at heart all yesterday.

Some people believe that he is still in the city. Others believe him safe on the Canada side. No absolute facts are known tending to prove either theory. Redwine the city. Others believe him safe on the Canada side. No absolute facts are known tending to prove either theory. Redwine managed his escape in a manner to prevent facts in regard to it becoming known very extensively. This wise precaution of his has put the city to speculating. No one has yet been found who saw him after he left Buckalew's saloon. Mr. Buckalew, in talking about the affair, says that it is the most mysterious affair he has ever known. He says he prepared Redwine's drink as he always does. Redwine was as cool as ever, and asked for the loan of his hat in a very ordinary way. Mr. Buckalew watched him go out the door, but did not see whether he went up the stairway, or through J. B. Redwine's office.

Chief Connolly has received one or two telegrams from parties who thought they had Redwine arrested. The one which created the biggest sensation was one received from V. E. Hudgens, the manager of the telegraph office at Easley, S. C. which came yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The telegram was a rush message, and stated that a man answering the description of Redwine was located in that town. The sender of the message wanted to know if Redwine had gold filled teeth and a scar on his chin. Chief Connolly answered at once and told the man to arrest the party he had located. He received no reply last night and gave up the clue as a ground-less one.

Yesterday a thousand inquiries were made

"Has Lewis Redwine been caught?" was asked on every side.

A great deal of anxiety is felt by the depositors with the Gate City National bank as to the safety of their money.

On this point the judgment of Atlanta's bankers is valuable. It is the opinion of the best-financiers in Atlanta that the bank will pay its depositors dollar for dollar. A well-known cashier said that it was not a question of paying its creditors their A weighted a question of paying its credibors their money, but just a question as to whether the bank would weather the storm that would have broken upon it yesterday, had its doors opened, that caused the officers to close its doors.

One of the warmest and most intimate personal friends of Mr. Redwine said yes-terday to a Constitution reporter: "All this talk about Lewis Redwine driving fast horses, squandering money on leading germans and posing generally as a swell society leader is all stuff, as will be attested by every one of his friends in the city and by all who ever associated with city and by all who ever associated with him.

"Mr. Redwine never owned a horse at all, never led a german in his life as I know of, never played cards at all and was by no means a society leader or unusually fond of society and was not what I would call an extravagant liver. He generally had the best of what was going, wore good clothes, smoked a good cigar and took an occasional drink, but in these respects his habits were not of an extraordinarily extravagant nature. Of course he went in society and in the very best society. He was welcomed in the homes of Atlanta where he was known and was always a favorite beau with the young ladies. He went to dances and germans occasionally, but even then did not often participate. He went to the theater often with the young ladies and may have occasionally presented handsome bouquets to some of those with whom he went. You know it is quite the fashion—a very absurd one, I think—for young men in society who take young ladies to a swell dance to send her a magnificent bouquet. In the winter roses from Washington cost from 50 cents to $1 apiece and all flowers are very expensive. I think this exaction of society is very exacting, but the young men nearly all do it and I know a great many of them in society in Atlanta who are not able to do so, who spend a good deal of money in this way, but Mr. Redwine was not extravagant in this particular and I certainly never considered him a society spendthrift. He was by no means a leader, because he did not care to be. Even when he went he seemed to go, not for pleasure, but because it was expected of him. He may have spent his money in other ways, but there is no truth in the talk that he spent all this sum for social exactions. He did nothing of the kind and has been very lit-"Mr. Redwine never owned a horse at

A gentleman prominently connected with the banking business in the city, in answer to the question why the other banks did not come to the aid of the Gate City bank, said that it was ascertained that the Hill family were debtors of the bank to the extent of $100,000 and of this amount President Lod Hill owes $33,000. Other heavy borrowers were W. H. Patterson to the sum of $34,000 and A. J. McBride, $19,000. The banks did not like this state of affairs bence their failure to come up with assistance.

Washington, February 23.—Comptroller Hepburn said this morning that there was something peculiar about the closing up of the Gate City National bank, Atlanta, Ga. According to the last report the bank's unimpaired capital was $250,000, its surplus $50,000, and its undivided profits $20,000, while the alleged embezzlement of the assistant cashier is stated at $70,000. In view of this statement it is thought strange that the bank should have to close its doors.

The old and well-known firm, James A. Anderson & Co., of 41 Whitehall street, A is preparing to go out of business. An offer has been made by New York parties for the Anderson company's stand and business and the firm has decided to sell out.

These letters stated that trade had been dull and collections poor and to continue in business would consume the capital. By winding up the affairs gradually every obligation could be met and then the firm would transfer its remaining stock and store to a new firm.

From the statement it is seen that the clothlers are able to close out their business and after settling in full can have a good sum left. The purpose of the letter is to inform creditors of the situation so that they will not press for an immediate settlement. Here is the circular letter which will speak for itself:

The coal dealers of Atlanta want the rail read companies to weigh the coal they bring here. It is claimed by the dealers that the weights at the mines and when the cars get here do not taily.

Their statement is that they are charged freight on more coal than the mines charge them for. them for.

The traffic officials of all the roads in the state have been summoned to appear before the commission next Monday, when the petition of the dealers will be heard.

Most of the coal shipped here cames from mines in Alabama and Tennessee.

He Leaves Atlanta for the National Cap-Ital at Last.

HE WILL ATTEND THE EXTRA SESSION

The Senator Seems to Be Fast Recovering, and Was in Good Spirits-His
Two Daughters Go with Him,

Senator Colquitt left Atlanta last night for the national capital.

He was accompanied by his two daughters, Miss Dollie and Miss Laura, who will remain with him in Washington until the work of the senate is over and the ad-journment is reached.

The Senator went by way of the Rich-mond and Danville, and left the city at 8:20 o'clock in a private car. He drove in from his home in Edgewood several hours before the train left and was taken at once to his private car which was held beyond the carshed out by the Markham house. the carshed out by the Markham house.

Here he rested several hours before the train left the shops. It was backed under the depot at 7 o'clock, when a few of Senator Colquitt's friends entered the private car and found the senator reclining on a sofa, quietly resting before beginning his long journey. He appeared bright and cheerful, despite his long and critical ill-ness, and received his callers with that warmth and cordiality that has always characterized him. With the assistance of a servant he arose from his couch and walked across the car to his large chair on the other side, and sitting there talked pleasantly for a half hour or more. Senator Colquitt will reach Washington tonight. He has already engaged rooms at the most desirable place in Washington, and within a few feet of the capitol. He will live there for the next month, when he hopes the senate will have finished its work and the members will be allowed to take another breathing spell, when he may come home again. He doesn't think he will be away more than a month.

Of course he will be in attendance upon the senate from tomorrow until the close of the session. Then he will be forced to stay at the capital for the extra session of the senate. There will have to be an extra session of the senate for the purpose of confirming all the appointments of the president, such as the cabinet, the consuls and dent, such as the cabinet, the consuls and the ministers of foreign countries, the appointments of the governors of territories and other such appointments. It will, of course, be a very busy session with all of the appointments liable to come up with the change of administration.

Senator Colquitt feels fully able to attend to his duties at the national capital, and looks better than his friends expected to see him, after all the sickness he has had recently. He thinks that the change in going to Washington will really do him good and is in excellent spirits. For weeks and weeks he has been compelled to stay in and weeks he has been compelled to stay in his room at home in Edgewood, and while his recovery has been very slow and gradual, he has seemingly entirely recovered from his attack, though yet a little feeble from the long confinement.

Mrs. Colquitt and Miss Hattie Colquitt will remain at the Edgewood home. Mrs.
Colquitt, who has herself, been very sick recently was at the train last night to see the senator off.

"TAR AND TARTAR."

The Famous Comic Opera Will Open at the Grand Tonight.

Grand Tonight.

Adam Itzel's tuneful and enchanting comic opera will be presented for the first time in our city tonight by a company of over sixty people, carrying with them their scenery and their orchestra. This performance will be a treat for our theatergoers and they will appreciate it as it has been appreciated everywhere else. The principals of the company are all first-class artists, and many of them are great New York favorites. No expense has been spared to give the opera in the best metropolitan style and we will see tonight ## metropolitan style and we will see tonight a production never excelled on a New York stage. The Philadelphia Ledger said of it:
"A spirited and showy revival of Itzel's comic opera, 'Tar and Tartar,' was given at the Broad street theater before an audience comic opera. Tar and Tartar, was given at the Broad street theater before an audience crowding the house to the walls. Fred Frear personated Muley Hassan and was very funny. The point of the performance was in the appearance of Annie Myers in the important role of Taffeta. Miss Myers was greeted with a welcome to be proud of, and succeeded in retaining the favor of the admiring throng to the fall of the curtain. She sang very sweetly and gave her part a vivacious and graceful rendition that contributed not a little to that general effect of sprightliness and go on which an entertainment of this character must necessarily depend. Marie Dressler also had a reception from the audience and personated Alpaca with the care and finish of a true artist. Addie Cora Reed and Myra Mirella were more than equal to the requirements of their several parts, and indeed the entire cast was exceedingly well filled. The chorus was large and well trained, and the staging of the opera as rich and splendid as could be desired."

Miss Annie Myers has never been in Atlanta before, but her New York record shows that she is a good singer, a fine actress and at the same time a very comely and attractive woman.

Grau's Opera Company. "In the days agone" comic opera was a high-priced luxury; but it remained for Jules Grau to revolutionize the amusement world. Grau to revolutionize the amusement world. He gave to the public a revolution of which they have not dreamed. He has devoted brain, time, energy, industry and an ample fortune to achieve success. He has succeeded and stands today a monument of untiring energy, discret audacity and unequaled nerve. He has followed no man's lead, he has hewn his own path to fame and fortune. He is the wonder of the profession, a veritable Golfatin the managerial field; in fact, the only Barnum in the operatic world. In the amusement world there is but one operatic organization which gives legitimate entertainments at popular prices, and that one is Jules Grau's Opera Company, that he brings with him this season. The best opera company seen in Atlanta in years. The engagement commences at the Grand Monday, February 27th, with a grand production of the "New Black Hussar." The prices will be 25, 35, 50 and 75 cents.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange. NEW YORK, February 23.—In the stock market the bears are again aggressive and active, and their operations extended to the entire active list, although the market, market the bears are again aggressive and active, and their operations extended to the entire active list, although the market, especially during the early part of the day, showed considerable narrowness and some resistance. The event of the day was the resignation of President Parsons and the directors of the New England road in sympathy with his management, and its effect was immediately to intensify the weakness prevailing in the general list. The financia confirmation of the control of Reading in New England neted, however, as a sustaining power in that stock, and after the opening decline it was well held within comparatively narrow limits. Friends of Parsons's management, however, were liberal sellers of New England, and that stock became one of the weakest on the list. Reading opened with a decline of 1.7-8, but at the close of the day had recovered 1-4, but New England closed at its lowest figures with a loss of 3.3-8 per cent. Lackawanna closed with a loss of 3.8- per cent and Delaware and Hudson, not withstanding a dividend. closed 2.1-4 lower. Among railroad stocks the only other special feature of importance was the drop in Northern Pacific preferred under the bear pressure in the last hour. It closed at a shade above its lowest at a net loss of 4.3-4 per cent. The switchmen's strike in Chicago became an established fact today, and was one of most powerful influences in encouraging the bears in their drives at the general list. Naturally roads centering in Chicago were most vulnerable, and Burlington, St. Paul and Rock Island all suffered declines of over 2 per cent. The most synthing feature, howeyr was the renewal of heavy selling in the content of the synthesis of the weak and the last price was only 3-4 per cent better than its lowest, its net loss for the day reaching 7.1-8 per cent. Shorts covered and a rally of three points followed, which was reflected in the high prices all over the list, but there was marrked lack of support in stock and the last price was only 3-4 per cent better than its hattan yielded up all of its late improvement and closed 3 per cent lower at 157, after selling at 158 1-4. The greater part of the losses sustained were suffered in the last hour, when the market became nervous throughout and closed weak and active at about the lowest points. Sales listed stocks, 422,000; unlisted, 147,000 shares.

Money on call easy, ranging from 3 1-2 to 5, closing offered at 4; prime mercantile paper 5 to 6 1-2.

J. 8. Rache & Co.'s Stock Letter.

By Private Wire to B. W. Martin. Manager.

NEW YORK, February 23.—The buils had to contend with a weak market from the other side, and as they were in no position to take care of any foreign selling, the market here was weak from the opening to the close. Europeans have been very large buyers during the last two weeks, and they seeing that our market supplied them the stocks without advancing, naturally got tired and sold about 10,000 shares in this market. The first stock to make a decided break was Sugar, in which the selling was ascribed to Mr. S. V. White. The story goes that he asked several banks to give him large loans on Sugar and they refused and he had to sell his stock in consequence. It is natural that this stock should break sharply, as Mr. White has been the main support of it lately. The weakest rail-spoal stock was Northern Pacific. This road had lost all its friends before the report came out. Mr. Villard is certainly not taking care of it, and for that reason Mr. Cammack and his friends marked it down easily. He and his friends were, all day engaged in selling stocks, and as the feeling of confidence has been shaken by the Reading expose, 120ple are willing to part with their holdings. It must also be noted that Mr. Parsons has resigned from the New England, who has control of this road, is a mystery but we would not be surprised to see a good friend of Mr. McLeod's turn up as owner of the road. We think the general market will sell lower, and theerfore we advise our friends to sell stocks on railles.

THE COTTON MARKETS.

Hubbard. Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, February 23—Expecting a settlement of the strike at the meeting in Manchester today the spinners bought freely in Liverpool, taking 10,000 bales of cotton at an advance of 1-16d in quotations, and the arrival market advanced 10-8d from the closing quotations of Tuesday. A portion of this advance was lost before the opening of our market, though 768-8id was held at the close of the day. Additional sales were reported yesterday after the close of business amounting to 2,000 bales, and it was a severe disappointment to the trade that late this afternoon advices were received stating the masters and operatives had falled to agree at the meeting. What the effect will be of the indefinite postponement of the lockout is difficult to forecast, but the anticipation of a settlement was so general that a large amount of contracts were bought both in this market and in Liverpool for spinners' account. This cotton will be thrown on the market. A portion of it has already been sold this afternoon by houses with Liverpool connections who have been accounted.

ners' account. This cotton will be thrown on the market. A portion of it has already been sold this afternoon by houses with Liverpool connections who have been prominent in their sales during the afternoon.
It had been hoped that a settlement would be arrived at, and that the holders of cotton would beneat from the increased demand for cotton from spinners, whose reserve stocks are reduced to remarkably low proportions. Our market opened firm at 13 points advance from Tuesday's prices, gained an additional 4 points in the face of the reported decline from Liverpool, and did not weaken until the advices above mentioned were received. On the break the buyers appear to be only those who had liquidated a portion of their holdings this morning. From Bombay the movement has fallen from an excess to a decrease, and loses 15,000 bales on the week's receipts. The recent advance enabled many to accept handsome profits during the morning, which was the feature of the day, and the buying was largely for account apparently of New Orleans parties who have been so convinced that the market could not advance. From Washington we are told that Mr. Hatch failed in his effort to bring up the antioption bill by a vote of 155 to 72.

NEW YORK, February 33—The market today has simply again repeated what we have had here ever since the labor troubles in Lancashire have been the moving factor. Liverpool yesterday advanced 2@3-544 and this morning again about 6-54d, bringing the full advance since the close of our market on the 21st to advance since the close of our market on the 21st to about 10-64d. There were again innumerable cables here predicting a settlement of the strike which, from the strength of the Liverpool quotations, appeared to be correct. Our market accordingly opened at an advance of about 15 points and held steady for some time. There was nothing definite received here in regard to what was transpiring at the masters meeting in Manchester up to about 12:30 o'clock, though the market before then began to show signs of weakness, our operators fearing that the lengthy session boded no good results. There, however, was no special weakness until shortly before 1 o'clock, when advices were received that no settlement had been arrived at and that action had been indefinitely postponed. Our market then became exceedingly weak, and the full about 10-64d. There were again innumerable cables advance was lost, the market this evening being about closing prices of the 21st. The Liverpool market had been closed before the meeting in Manchester adjourned, and it remains to be seen what the results of the same will have on Liverpool tomorrow. The receipts at the ports have been exceedingly light, and with these small receipts there is no reason to look for any weakness. At the same time the main interest seems to center in the Hatch bill and the Lancashire short troubles, and untill one or both these factors are disposed of we look for no improvement.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Lamson Brus. & Co.'s Grain Letter. By Private Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager. By Private Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager.

CHICAGO, February 23.—Bradstreet's available supply statement showed a decrease of both coasts of about one million bushels wheat. Liverpool spot market steady, futures a shade higher. Our market has been very dull but firm. Part of the strength is undoubtedly due to the probable defeat of the Hatch bill. There is some crop damage tall but not enough to materially affect prices. In the cash and sample crowd the market was firm with offerings light. Corn was very much depressed and lower, especially in the cash crowd and sample lots. The farmers appear to be rather unfortunate in the marketing of their produce. Last year when corn was higher they held on to it and gave away their pigs. Now they are disposed to market as much corn as possible at the lowest prices. Some of the large local speculators who are short were taking their profits today and a reaction in favor of holders is quite probable.

Hog product was rather dull and depressed early; later became firmer, closing only a shade lower than Tuesday.

The Central Announces That It Will Resume Store Door Delivery.

ALL THE OTHER ROADS WILL JOIN.

Western and Atlantic Says That It Will Keep Up with the Procession and Follow Suit.

The Central railroad did not long delay deciding what it will do in regard to re-establishing free delivery. Yesterday morning it was given out among the merchants that the Central will hold up its end and hand feelight free in the control will be the control will b haul freight from competitive points right up to the store doors without extra charge

The Central people were against abolashing the practice and held out for free delivery to the last moment. One of them stat-ery to the last moment. One of them stated yesterday that he was glad the roads were going back to the old way. It is expensive to the companies, he admitted, but it makes friends of the shippers, and he thought that they appreciate it more than the cost to the lines. General Freight Agent Winburn, of the Central, was up from Savannah yesterday. He would not say much about what will be done to meet the Western and Atlantic's refusal to switch cars after March 1st, and he did not deny that free delivery will be re-established by his company. While he was reticent on that point, it was given out on Alabama street that the Central will certainly resume its old policy unless there is a meeting of the executive board between this and March 1st, and a new agreement made among the roads.

All the companies will follow the East old policy unless there is a meeting of the executive board between this and March 1st, and a new agreement made among the roads.

All the companies will follow the East Tennessee and the Central. Nothing official came from the Georgia Pacific or the Richmond and Danville, during the day. but it is presumed that the system will do just as the other roads are going to do. Nothing official came from the Atlanta and West Point or the Georgia companies but they will be forced to follow the lead.

A Western and Atlantic official stated that his road will certainly go back to free delivery if the other lines do. "We will keep up with the procession," said he. "We had to stop tracking foreign cars, and if that forces the old bethods back, why we will do our part. It is expensive, but it would be more expensive not to do it if one or two poads returned to the custom."

An Alabama street merchant who said six months ago that it made very littel difference to him one way or another whether the roads abolished free delivery or not, has modified his views. After a trial he has concluded that free delivery is less annoying and expensive than paying out of his own pocket from the draying. Sometimes the merchants get only half of a shipment at a time and several drays charge as much for delivering half a load as for a full load.

The allowance for draying hides many a cut in rates, traffic men declare. Of course it is always done by some other road. Each suspects all the rest. Free delivery costs the railroads $100,000 a year directly, and behind it many a cut is made.

The question of making free delivery general over the state does not strike the roads favorably at all, but they may have to come to it in the end. It will be a matter for the interstate commission to consider and rule on, railroad attorneys say. The free delivery applies mostly to business coming from other states, and cannot be regulated by the Georgia commission, according to the decision of traffic men.

She Appeared Refore the Aldermanic Board and Carried Her Point.

The only feature of any special interest connected with the meeting of the aldermanic board yesterday afternoon was the appearance of Carrie Steel in behalf of the colored orphans' home.

When the session was about half over and there was promise of very little incident to relieve the dull monotony of routine work, Carrie very quietly entered the council chamber and took a seat in one of the chairs on the ouside of the railing.

After the work of the board, which consisted of a mere concurrence in the ordinances which were passed by the general council, one of the members of the board moved that Carrie Steel be heard from if she had anything to bring before the board.

"I have come to see you in behalf of my wild the were in the order when the come to see you in behalf of my wild the west of the board. th grades. Another question was as location of the schools, and if it was advisable to rebuild one or two of the

if she had anything to bring before the board.

"I have come to see you in behalf of my children," said she with a tremor in her voice. "I have been too unwell to sell my book or to do anything in behalf of the home myself and I want you to help me to keep the children from starving."

"Has the matter already been before the council?" asked one of the aldermen. It was stated by Councilman Reneau, who was present, and also Councilman Peters that the matter had passed the council and had been approved.

"Have you any children from outside of Atlanta?" inquired Alderman Rice.

"No, sir, they are all children that belong to this city and all except four of them are orphans. I am teaching them to be honest and to make them Christians. As long as I am able to work I can support them myself, but I have been forced to ask the city to help me."

"I move that we concur in the matter," said Alderman Broyles.

There was a hearty second to the motion, but Alderman Rice objected. He thought the matter ought to go before the charitable association to have it ascertained that all of the children belonged to Atlanta.

"But, Mr. Rice," said Carrie, "I am needing the money right away to keep them from starvation." The tears came into her eyes as she made this speech and began to trickle down her cheeks. "My whole life is devoted to these children, and I have made a slave of myself until I have broken down under the work. For God's sake help me and do something for these poor children who are starving for the want of bread."

There was a look of sympathy on the part of the dignified aldermen and even Mr. Rice, who assured Carrie that he merely wished to comply with the law, was obliged to yield to the supplication.

The motion was put and the sum of $500 which was voted by the council, was approved unanimously by the board of aldermen. Carrie was congratulated on the success of her little speech and for the zeal which had characterized her in her noble work in behalf of the orphan children of her race.

DR. IRWIN DEAD.

RECEPTION One of the Leading Clergymen of Georgia Passes Away.

FORMERLY A PASTOR IN THIS CITY

He was a Leader in the Baptist Denomition, and One of the Oldest Ministers in the State.

Dr. C. M. Irwin, one of the oldest and most prominent Baptist divines in Georgia, died at the residence of his son, Mr. Charles B. Irwin, in this city yesterday charles B. Irwin, in this city yesterday morning at 2:30 o'clock.

He was surrounded by his children, grand-children and other members of the household, and his last moments, in beautiful harmony with his Christian life, were perfectly account and tenerally fectly serene and tranquil.

Dr. Irwin was in the eightieth year of his age, and for several months had been in declining health. On account of his physical infirmities, his death was not altogether unexpected. It was nevertheless a great bereavement, not only to his immediate family circle, but to the entire Baptist lenomination, and to the cause of Christi-ate family circle, but to the entire Baptist denomination, and to the cause of Christianity in the state.

Few men led a more active or consecrated life. From the period of his earliest boyhood, he became a member of the church, and for the greater portion of his four-score years, he was a loyal and devout minister of the gospel. A gentleman of broad culture and of rare scholarly attainments, he was regarded as a power in the church and as authority on all questions pertaining to doctrine and theology. In addition to his wonderful career as a minister of the gospel, he had the distinguished fortune to be connected with many of the leading families-of the state.

He was the brother-in-law of Judge E. A. Nisbet, one of the purest men that ever adorned the judiciary of the state. He was also a nephew of Judge David Irwin, one of the original codifiers of the law of Georgia and one of the ablest legal scholars the state has ever produced. Mr. J. T. Irwin, formerly a law partner of Judge L. J. Gartrell, is a brother of Dr. Irwin.

He leaves only two children, Mrs. Dr. M. B. Wharton, of Norfolk, Va., and Mr. Charles B. Irwin, of this city.

Dr. Irwin was a great advocate of higher education and for more than twenty-five years was identified with Mercer university as a trustee of that institution.

He was at one time the pastor of the Sec-education and for more than twenty-five years was identified with Mercer university as a trustee of that institution.

He was at one time the pastor of the Second Baptist church in this city, and during the period of his connection with that organization, he enjoyed the spiritual satisfaction of receiving and baptising into the church a large number of souls.

After leaving Atlanta he was also identified with the leading Baptist churches of Albany and Madison.

No minister of the Baptist denomination in Georgia was more broadly admired for his intellectual gifts or more universally beloved for his Christian life and character, than Dr. Irwin. He was always genial, approachable and pleasant, and in all of the qualities of his heart and soul, he was the very pattern of excellence and the soul of honor.

A MAD DOG'S WORK

He Slaughters Farmer Goggins's Hogs by the Wholesale. Marietta, Ga., February 23.—(Special.)—Mr. James Goggins, who lives three miles from town, on the Dallas road lost fifty dollars' worth of hogs on last Monday morning. A mad dog entered the lane leading to his pasture and bit several of his fine Poland China hogs before he could be run off. Mr. Goggins heard the hogs squealing and went out and found the dog making ferocious attacks upon them. Mr. Goggins ran in the house to get his gun, but unfortunately the gun was not loaded. His dog then jumped on the mad dog and bit him, when the mad dog got loose and ran off. Mr. Goggins followed the mad dog two miles to get to kill him, but he escaped. It was a large black fice, and foamed at the mouth, having every indication of the rabies. Mr. Goggins will kill his own dog and put each of his hogs in separate pens and wait developments. Two of the hogs he was offered $25 for a few weeks ago.

SUCCESS

Nothing Succeeds Like Success.

Since Dr. Hathaway & Co. opened their office in this city they have been highly complimented upon opening a specialty practice, which is so essential to the people of Atlanta and vicinity. The many patients who have taken treatment during the short time the doctors have been located here express great satisfaction in the result obtained, many saying, "if I could only had this treatment before I would have been well long ago and saved myself a great deal of suffering." The methods of treatment employed by Dr. Hathaway & Co. are new and effective, doing away with many of the old-fashioned methods of cutting and burning and other severe forms of treatment which are old and in a majority of cases do more harm than good. The moderate charges made by Dr. Hathaway & Co. are can invitation to the people, as the majority of doctors who treat diseases peculiar to men and women, private skin, blood and numerous diseases, charge exhorbitently, but Dr. Hathaway & Co.'s charges are low and reasonable and within the means of all. Consult them if in need of treatment and save valuable time.
